It is the descendants of John Mills Smith and Emily Blandin Torrey with which this record is chiefly concerned.

Note: The Cousins, Helen and Alice Smith, who now live in the Washington Valley house, built in 1812, are the daughters of Zenas H. Smith, younger brother of John Mills Smith.

JONATHAN SMITH -- NEW JERSEY PIONEER

That Jonathan Smith was the father of John Smith we learn from a deed in the possession of the family at the Old Brick House in Morristown in 1930. This deed is a transfer to John Smith of the share of Zenas, Mary and Jacob Smith in the estate of Jonathan. The document is dated 1794.

Numerous large tracts of land are included in the deed -- mostly in Essex County near Caldwell. The property is described as having been purchased by Jonathan in 1773 from James, Earl of Perth, through the latter's attorney in New Jersey.

From this we assume that Jonathan was a man of more than ordinary position. Nor is it unlikely that he may have inherited some portion of his fortune from his father. In consequence, a search of New Jersey and Connecticut wills may tell something more about both of them. Records in the New Jersey Proprietors Building at Perth Amboy should be consulted.

According to the New Jersey Historical Society, Zenas was a member of the Caldwell Church in 1784, and Elizabeth, Betsey, Samuel, Jacob and Josiah Smith were members in 1796. Abigail Smith was one of the signers in 1784 of the organization compact of the church which is given by Faris in his Historical Shrines of America. One suspects that she may have been the wife of Jonathan.

JOHN SMITH
The Wagoner of the Revolution

Among the boys who aided in the winning of American Independence was John Smith who lived in Caldwell, New Jersey, a town only about twelve miles from Washington's winter quarters at Morristown and itself the scene of brisk fighting. When John was only fourteen he served twenty days as a wagoner with the New Jersey militia.

The following statement of his service was given by Frederick Gilkyson, Adjutant General of the State of New Jersey, March 10, 1927: "Abstracts of pay rolls discharged by Joseph Lewis, Paymaster, Militia of Morris, Sussex and Bergen Counties: No: 50, date of service, Nov. 4, 1777, 20 days; date paid April 27, 1778, carted "Baggage for part of General Winds Brigade of Militia at New Windsor," amount L 17:5:0."

This and fourteen other records of similar service given by the Adjutant General were quoted in an affidavit by Carrie M. Hoffman, March 24, 1927, in establishing this fact for the Daughters of the American Revolution. The remaining records cover a period from Dec. 5, 1777, to Dec. 8, 1781.

Phebe Katherine Smith in a deposition of May 25, 1925, for the same purpose, said, that her great-grandfather, the said John Smith, was a wagoner in the Revolutionary War: that the only record of such service that she finds is contained in a letter written by Sarah Gould Smith Stickney, a granddaughter of the said John Smith, which reads as follows: "Grandpa was in the Revolutionary War, not in the ranks, drove a team." That she has always heard this fact mentioned by her aunts and uncles, grandchildren of the said John Smith,

According to family tradition, John became lame from the exposure of army life and always walked with a cane.

In 1788 John Smith and his family moved from Caldwell to Washington Valley, three miles west of Morristown where in 1812 "The Brick House" was built, which has been the Smith Homestead for more than a century. The sand was brought from Morristown and the bricks were made on the place from clay found thereon. The frame part was moved from its foundations, brought up and annexed to the brick house. Sarah Gould Smith died there, aged 102. The authority for this statement is Silas Smith, son of Jonathan Huger Smith and grandson of John.

The register of the First Church of Morristown records that John Smith came by letter to the church from Caldwell, July 1, 1788, and died April 1855, aged 92.

From Records of Earl J. Tower.

JONATHAN HUGER SMITH
Scientific Farmer

The skillful farming of the three succeeding generations are a tribute to the pioneer work of Jonathan Huger Smith. He built roads and culverts and taught his neighbors the art of stone under-draining the land in the days before tile draining.

Morris County had at one time been a famous wheat growing section but in Jonathan's time the wheat grew to straw without a head. For years he kept experimenting until he discovered that lime was all that the soil needed. Accordingly, he hauled stone from seven miles away and built a kiln for the burning of lime with the result that wheat yielded bigger returns than ever was known before.

It is of interest to note that the wood for the kiln cost $1 a cord standing, even in those distant days, and that there is now ten times as much standing timber in the region as there was then. In somewhat later years, Jonathan bought waste from the tanneries at Newark, 22 miles away, and the old kiln was used for the storage of malt. As a tribute to his leadership, Jonathan was awarded a certificate of life membership in the State Board of Agriculture.

That he was a man of fine physique is indicated by the fact that he was the winner of the plowing championship. Family tradition says that he attended college in his youth. Certainly he was a man of unusual mind and with a vast store of information. He was named as a candidate for Congress but was thrown from his horse and so seriously injured that he was unconscious for six weeks. It is said that but for this accident which injured his brain, so that his speech was affected, he would have won the honor without opposition.

Jonathan was a member of an artillery unit in the militia, and the sword and pistols which he wore on Training Day are on display at Washington's Headquarters in Morristown.

When his father became heavily involved financially as the result of some unsuccessful commercial venture, Jonathan assumed the aged man's burden rather than see him face a debtor's prison. Under the laws of that time, with the consent of the creditors, the son "took the limits", which meant that he was not allowed to travel more than five miles from home until the debt was paid. So sincere was he that the judge later removed all stipulation from his movements. The debt was quickly cleared.

THE GOULDS

Sarah Gould, usually known as Sally, who married John Smith at Caldwell November 2, 1789 was born near Caldwell, N. J., October 22, 1770. Her husband often spoke of paying visits to her birthplace. She was "a big, heavy woman, famed for her patch-work quilts and dried apples", according to Henry C. Smith, who saw her in 1865 when he visited Morristown while on furlough to recover from the effects of his term in a Confederate prison. Sally died in Morristown April 8, 1872. She was the daughter of:

Joseph Gould, born February 24, 1747, died August 24, 1820, and his wife Sarah Ward, born March 17, 1747, died November 14, 1810, according to a family bible in the possession of Alice Smith.

Fragments of two old letters from "cousin Nathaniel Gould" at the old Smith homestead say "Joseph Gould's father is believed to have been drowned at Little Falls (near Caldwell) and I have been shown an island on which he was buried. He was supposedly born in Essex County...

A Joseph Gould whose age was about ten years different from that of Sally's father is buried in the Caldwell cemetery. Stryker lists a Joseph Gould as a member of Captain Squires Company, Second Essex, which was a Caldwell organization. There was a Nathaniel Ward who might have been Sarah Ward's father, who was in the same company. A Joseph Gould was a prominent Caldwell potter, living in the present Roseland section. Much of his handiwork is still to be seen in collections in northern New Jersey. He was an organizer of the library in 1789.

The founder of the family seems to have been Thomas Gould who was in Caldwell in 1740. He built on the road to Roseland and died in 1809, aged 99, placing his birth in 1710. His sons were Joseph, Robert, Timothy and William.

Signers of the organization compact of the Caldwell church in 1784 were William, Mehetable, Thomas, Robert, John and Dorcas.

The family may have descended from Major Nathan Gould of St. Edmundsbury, England, and Milford, Conn., as many of the Caldwell folk came from Milford.

THE BEACH LINE

Samuel Beach, father-in-law of Jonathan Huger Smith, was born July 5, 1762. He lived in Mendham, N. J., where he married Lurana, daughter of Major Henry Axtell, in January, 1788. Apparently he is the Samuel Beach of Morris County who served as a private in Capt. David Ford's troop of Light Dragoons, First Squadron, Second Cavalry, during the Pennsylvania Insurrection--September 6, 1794 to December 25, 1794. Samuel died February 22, 1824. He was the son of:

Captain Joseph Beach (4) who was born about 1720 and died February 17, 1765. Joseph married Eunice Baldwin, born about 1720 and died December 25, 1787. She was a daughter of Nathaniel Baldwin and his second wife, Esther. Joseph was appointed justice of the peace in Mendham in 1759. He served in the French and Indian War and in the militia. He was the son of:

Epenetus Beach (3) born in August 1696, died June 14, 1750. He married in 1716 or 1718, Mary-- born February 27, 1696-7 and died December 13, 1736. He married second, the widow Phebe Kinney who survived him. He was town collector in 1726 and surveyor of highways in 1744. He had five sons and five daughters. Epenetus was a son of:

Zophar Beach (2) born May 27, 1662, at Milford, Conn., removed to Newark, N.J. The Newark archives record that on February 25, 1683, "Samuel Lyons hath liberty to give Zophar Beach 2 acres of ground to build on." He did not build on this ground, however, but traded it for another piece of ground on which he received a deed, March 12, 1687-8. He was town assessor 1695, 6, 7 and 9; a townsman 1691-3, and in 1700 served on a committee to provide a man for Surveyor General. He witnessed numerous wills. His wife was Martha, daughter of Deacon John Pratt of Milford. She was born 1679. Their children were born in Newark, apparently with the exception of one. Zophar was a son of:

Thomas Beach (1) of Milford. He is presumed to be the youngest of three brothers who came with the Rev. Peter Prudden to New Haven in 1638 although he first appears on the records there April 6, 1646. He took the oath of fidelity March 7, 1647. Since his older brothers, Richard and John, took the oath in 1644, it is believed that Thomas was not of age then. In 1652 he married Sarah, daughter of Deacon Richard Platt of Milford. In 1654 he moved to Milford where he worked as a shoemaker. Thomas died in 1662 and his wife married Myles Merwin. She had four children by him and died March 15, 1670. Thomas is said to have been a member of the de la Beche family which had its origin in Touraine, France, from where descendants migrated to England in the 14th century, the name becoming Beach in the 16th century.

THE AXTELL LINE

1. THOMAS AXTELL was baptized at Berkhamstead, England, January 26, 1619. He was undoubtedly the progenitor of the Axtells in the U.S.

DANIEL AXTELL, the regicide, was born in the same place in 1622, and was probably a brother of Thomas. He took an active part against the government of King Charles I and during the king's trial held an office in the Parliament that condemned him to death. He was also a Colonel in Cromwell's army. After the restoration of Charles II in 1660, Daniel was beheaded. The defence which he made before the court, and the prayer he made on the scaffold when he was beheaded, are recorded in "Corbett's State Trials".

2. HENRY son of Thomas (1) and Mary Axtell was baptized in Berkhamstead, England, October 15, 1641. The family must have left England about 1642. The next we read of them, Thomas died in Sudbury, Mass., in 1646. Henry took land in the new town of Marlboro, near Sudbury in 1660. Married in 1665 and had two sons Thomas born 1672 and Daniel born 1673. Henry was killed in the Wadsworth Indian massacre April 21, 1676 -

3. DANIEL second son of Henry (2) born in Marlboro in 1673. About 1700 he went to South Carolina and found there a Lady Axtell. There is little doubt that she was the widow of Daniel, the regicide, who was beheaded in 1660- that his family was forced to leave England for the part their husband and father had played against the government of Charles I.

Daniel
In 1702 ~~Henry~~ married Thankful, daughter of William Pratt, of Weymouth, Mass. He settled in Berkley, Mass., and had six sons and seven daughters. Their 3rd son was

4. HENRY, born in 1715 in Berkley, Mass. Learned the Blacksmith's trade and in 1737 married Jemima Leonard of Taunton, Mass. In 1740 or 1741 he took his family to the wilds of Morris Co., N.J. locating about 2 mi. s.e. of where the village of Mendham now stands. He died in 1753 or 1754 aged 38. Their first son was
5. MAJOR HENRY, born in Plymouth Co. Mass., March 16, 1738. When he was about three years old his father moved to Morris Co., N.J. where Henry lived the rest of his life. He was a farmer. His first wife was Mary Beach whom he married June 18, 1760. She died in 1766 and January 7, 1767 he married a widow Phebe Day, ne Condict. She was born June 25, 1740. He died April 6, 1818 and she July 6, 1829, aged 89 years. She had eight children, only one of whom survived her.

Major Henry Axtell was a man of prominence and influence in the section of the county in which he lived. When the Revolutionary War broke out he took a decided stand for the independence of the Colonies, and was a sterling patriot throughout the struggle.

He held the rank of Major in a military organization known as "Minute Men", whose duty it was to hold themselves in readiness to assemble at a moment's notice to repel an invasion from the British soldiers who were stationed at New York, and made frequent raids into the adjacent counties of New Jersey. Although they made several attempts they never succeeded in invading Morris County.

6. LURANA, first child of Major Henry Axtell and Phebe Condict Axtell was born in Morris Co., N.J., October 20, 1767. She married Samuel Beach January 1788, and died April 6, 1820. They had eleven children, the third of whom was
7. PHEBE CONDUCT BEACH, born in Morris Co., N.J., December 19, 1792, married JONATHAN HUGER SMITH February 29, 1820, and died in 1864, aged 72.

Taken from "The Axtell Record" by Ephraim S. Axtell, 1886.

THE TORREY LINE

1. WILLIAM TORREY of Combe St. Nicholas, the county of Somerset, England, died in June 1557, leaving a will, in which he mentions Thomasyne, his wife, and "every of his children," without naming them.
2. PHILIP TORREY, son of William (1) and Margaret his wife. His will is dated in 1604; mentions his son William and daughter Dorotheie; also his wife Margaret.
3. WILLIAM TORREY son of Philip (2) and Jane, his wife. His wife died in April 1639 at which date he was still living. The date of his death is not found. His son Philip had previously died.
4. PHILIP TORREY, son of William (3) and Alicie, his wife. He died in June 1621, leaving a will dated April 21, 1621, in which he mentions three daughters and four sons, William, James, Philip and Joseph.

The will of the wife Alicie is dated in 1634, and mentions by name the same seven children, and states that the daughter Mary was deceased. These four sons all emigrated to America in 1640 and located within a few miles of Boston, Mass., and seem to have been the ancestors of all the early families of the name in America.

5. WILLIAM TORREY, of Weymouth, Mass., son of Philip (4), usually called "Captain William Torrey" was born in Combe St. Nicholas, in England in 1608. The church records show that he was baptized December 21, 1608.

On March 17, 1629 he married Agnes Combe of Combe St. Nicholas. She died before he left England, and he was appointed administrator of her estate. In 1640 he came to America, bringing with him his two sons, Samuel born in 1632, and William born in 1638, and settled in Weymouth, which was thereafter his home. He died there June 10, 1690.

6. WILLIAM TORREY of Weymouth, son of Captain William (5) was born in England in 1638. Came with his father to Weymouth in 1640; Married Deborah, daughter of John Green; died January 11, 1718; she died February 8, 1729. They had eight children. Their second son -

In 1736 they moved to Middletown, Conn., where Abigail died July 12, 1737. He remarried, Martha daughter of Jonah and Martha Strickland, of Middletown, February 16, 1738. They had four children who lived to maturity. He died September 17, 1745. Of the children by his second wife, his son -
9. WILLIAM TORREY, of Williamstown, Mass., youngest son of Samuel (8) of Middletown, by his second wife Martha, born in Middletown January 21, 1744. Soon after completing his apprenticeship to a mechanical trade, he in 1766 accompanied his older brother John to Williamstown, Mass., and secured land for a farm adjoining his brother's, and resided upon it as long as he lived. His mother Martha also removed to Williamstown and during the last few years of her life, resided alternately with her two sons. She died between 1800 and 1804. On April 13, 1771 he married Hannah Wheeler, daughter of Dea. Nathan Wheeler, of Williamstown. He died October 30, 1820. She died January 28, 1824. Their youngest son was -

JOHN MILLS SMITH

Annual Report of the Wisconsin Horticultural Society
for 1893-94. In Memorial J.M. Smith, by B.S. Hoxie.

Not many days after the close of the annual meeting of this society last February, the word was passed by wire, letter and public press, "J.M. Smith of Green Bay died at his home, Feb. 20 1894." Similar words meet our eye every day as we look over the papers that lie on our tables. Some friend has passed away but when our kith and kin, those we have long associated with, fill out the measure allotted to them and pass to the other shore, we pause for a moment while we contemplate life's mysteries and death's certainties. In the brief sketch which I shall present of one who was for so long an honored member of this society, I shall make no attempt at a biography of his life; abler pens than mine will perform that task.

For fifteen years he filled the chair as its president, and as one who held intimate relations with him for a portion of that time as secretary, it may be that some word of mine may be proper for this memorial page.

Mr. Smith was born Dec. 13, 1820, and died Feb. 20, 1894, thus completing his earth life in the seventy-fifth year of his age. Born and raised on a farm, it was not strange that he chose horticulture and the market garden as a profession. Circumstances placed him in Green Bay but he so far controlled circumstances that he not only built up a happy home, but amassed enough of wealth to take life at an advantage as he neared its close. Mr. Smith was keenly alive not only to the agricultural interests of his one state, but he was close observer of men and methods, and in his trips of business or pleasure to other states of the Union the opportunity for observation and comparison afforded to him many lessons which served useful purposes for his own work, and also to enrich and give character to articles from his pen in the various agricultural papers to which he was a contributor.

He was always anxious that Wisconsin should take rank as first in agricultural education, and as president of the State Horticultural Society, signed a call with a few other prominent men -- who were equally interested -- for a convention to meet in Madison to discuss the propriety of asking legislative aid for the establishment of an agricultural college. Special friends of agriculture and horticulture convened on this call; and none were more pleased with the unanimity of the sentiment expressed than Mr. Smith.

The burning of the Science Hall early in the winter of the same year necessitated the rebuilding of the same as soon as possible, and in conversation with him at this time, he declared that fate seemed to be against us, "For we cannot now have our bill introduced at the present legislature, for it will surely be defeated."

A law was, however, enacted making provision for farmers' institutes.

Mr. Smith, always hopeful, and willing to take the best thing attainable, at once entered heartily into the work and gave much of his valuable time to assist in lectures and essays from the first inauguration of the work up to the time of his death, and though he did not live to see the consummation of his ideas in the agricultural college, he did live to see Wisconsin take rank as second to none; and first in many respects through the agricultural departments of the state university.

The writer was so intimately acquainted with Mr. Smith that he can speak of him only as a friend, but he was a friend to all who knew him. Cast in a mould which hated shams and hypocrisy, right and justice stood foremost. He never asked a man about his creed or politics, but all true men were his brothers. Generous to a fault, his house was always a home to his friends; and the annual gatherings at the strawberry festival where long tables were spread under the trees in his own lawn were always memorable occasions for the renewal of old friendships and forming new.

The president of our society was was often a delegate to other societies, and at the New Orleans exposition was assistant commissioner from the state with Mr. Holten of Milwaukee, as principal, and as such, the management of the horticultural exhibit was under his immediate charge, and by his forethought and correct judgment Wisconsin came off with lasting honors for her horticultural products, and no man did more to honor horticulture at home or abroad than he, for his faith in Wisconsin as a horticultural state was unbounded, and this faith was manifest in his works-- he not only dignified his profession but made the soil yield him valuable returns. It was not his ambition to possess the largest market garden, but to get the most out of it, or, in other words to test the possibilities of an acre. We can offer no higher eulogy to a man than to say he was kind as a friend, generous and loyal as a citizen, devoted as a husband and father, and a lover of mankind; and such was the character of him whose memory we here perpetuate.
